

The Farm Office

Compare the building you are facing with the one in the photographs taken a century ago. Built as the Farm Office in 1908, it is still in use today as the Miner Institute administrative center. Little has changed in the past century except the landscaping. The road into Heart's Delight Farm split at this point. The left curve, where you are now standing, led to Heart's Delight Cottage. Farm business traffic took the right curve leading to the Farm Office and barnyard. Eventually a second set of stone gates was built a few hundred feet east of the main entrance. This east route, where you entered the farm today, has been used since that time for all farm traffic.

The divided drive at the Farm entrance, with the coach barn in the foreground and the one-room schoolhouse in the distance.

Heart's Delight Farm Heritage Walk
For information: (518) 846-7121, www.whminer.com